

TODAY'S UNEMPLOYMENT CLAIMS: AN EMPLOYER'S GUIDE

Wednesday, November 11 • 1:30 – 2:30 p.m.

PURPOSE

The arrival of the pandemic brought many changes and additions to federal and state laws on unemployment compensation for workers in health care settings including changes to employees' eligibility criteria and the effect of paid benefits on your unemployment costs. This webinar will update and refresh your knowledge of this complex set of laws and how you can best address challenges in unemployment claims

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Learn what unemployment benefits are currently available under state and federal law.
- Review federal pandemic unemployment benefits that remain available.
- Become familiar with the current landscape of employees' eligibility for unemployment benefits, particularly those related to the pandemic.
- Review the basic differences, and those arising in the pandemic, between being a taxpaying and reimbursing employer for unemployment purposes.
- Understand changes to the way payment of unemployment benefits affects your unemployment costs depending on whether you are a taxpaying or reimbursing employer.
- Know how your pandemic employment policies and practices affect unemployment eligibility.
- Consider when an employee may refuse to work and still collect unemployment.
- Know how to contest claims approved for individuals who you believe do not meet the criteria for accessing unemployment benefits.
- Get the latest update on scheduling appeal hearings in Minnesota so you have a sense of when yours might be addressed.
